

Calland Mausoleum

A Greek Revival mausoleum with acroteria at the corners and some vase-like object at the apex of the roof. Below the latter and above the door is the family coat of arms. The door is covered with corrugated iron, covering part of the incised inscription. Commemorative ?marble plaques with leaded lettering either side of entrance way.

Paddington Cemetery
Willesden Lane
London
NW6 7SD

Scan for Google Maps Link

Architects

Not known

Year Built

1885

Style

Greek Revival

Listing

--

Condition

2002: Fair/Poor

2019: Looking intact but neglected.

Corrugated entrance coverings detract and obscure. Rather stained, some erosion of stonework surface, lettering dropping out of Gladys' plaque. Looking damp at footings, judging from photos.

History

The Mausoleum of Augustus Percival Calland (1815-1901) his (second) wife Ellen Sarah Calland (nee Kirkaldie, 1853-1906) and "Darling Little Gladys" (1885-1888) a daughter who died in childhood. Some of the lead lettering has fallen out of Gladys' plaque. Calland was apparently a wealthy man and landowner, but suffered ill (mental) health following the death of his first wife. He remarried a much younger woman, nine years later. Augustus' address at the time of his death on 30 June 1901 was both Upper Forest, Glamorgan and Hail Road, St John's Wood in London (see Western Mail).

Sources

Western Mail, Tuesday 19 November 1901, 'Local Wills'.

Photos

Location

SatNav Co-ordinates: 51.5366826091, -0.2063198476